

Cell phone use onboard aircraft while in-flight is a bad idea. I have been a flight attendant for nearly twenty years and feel this would compromise the safety of the crew and passengers alike. In critical moments it is crucial to have the passenger's immediate attention while conveying safety information and instructions that will save lives. Allowing cell phone use under normal operations; you might as well render them deaf, dumb, and blind in an unexpected emergency.